

Assignments

Week 17, beginning 12/10/2007:

Tuesday:

- This is it, the final class. You made it!
- I'll hand back the papers I received. All of you introduced interesting ideas, but some of you didn't do a particularly good job documenting your ideas. In fact, a couple of you didn't document your claims at all.
- Don't do this on your final three-page paper. Make sure you do your Works Cited correctly and that you cite your evidence.
- Today will again be a workshop class during which we'll first talk again about the requirements for your paper, due during the final exam period on Thursday, 12/13, from 1:30 - 3:30, and then we'll make sure that you have a strong thesis and a structure that will deliver a 750-word argument paper with punch and evidence.

Homework due Thursday during the final exam period:

1. Hand in your argument paper during the final exam period. Don't ask for extra time. Don't email your paper. Just bring it by and hand it in during this period since no papers will be accepted after 3:30 on Thursday.

And then, have a terrific winter break!
